

Sovereign Declaration

A Declaration of Peace and Independence

Let it be known:

I hereby declare that I am not at war with anyone. I command no troops. I salute no flag.

I seek only peaceful, voluntary relationships with my fellow human beings. I respect the life, liberty, and property of others and ask the same in return. If I cause harm, I will strive to make it right. If I am harmed, I will strive to forgive and give mercy.

I subscribe to the philosophy of self-rule and self-mastery—autarchy.

I reject all forms of coercion and withdraw my support from those who employ violence to subjugate their fellow human beings.

I sever all allegiance to any individual, organization, or entity that does not recognize my right to say, “No.”
